as the hour jumps to your eyes
four windows on the poems of thalia field (amplified paper, stones, compressed air, and electro-acoustic processing)
as the hour jumps to your eyes (4 windows on thalia field)

Seth Cluett (2006)

Player 2: Stones + Compressed Air

- A fabric bag filled with stones
- A can of compressed air

1. Air into a towel very slowly roll bag of rocks in one hand alternating counts of rests and counts of silence

(11)

(3, 10, 20, 31, 6, 12)

Very quiet, terrace dynamics abruptly but not dramatically between adjacent quieter and louder sounds

2. Stop 15 counts after first paper rip start again after second paper rip play once through each duration then stop

Watch paper, when paper starts to make circles, choose a spot along their path to trigger an air sound that you hold for the duration of the word "vacuum"

(3, 10, 20, 31, 6, 12)

(11)

Generally quiet with random single loud sounds

3. Roll bag of rocks for one full rotation of palm. First time through on any one number; each repeat add a another number until you are playing constantly, occasionally pair rock sound with air, repeat until cue

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23

Blend with texture never above player 3: tissue + compressed air
2 flat sheets of tissue paper
1 piece to be crumpled
1 compressed air canister

as the hour jumps to your eyes (4 windows on thalia field)

seth cluett (2006)

1.
slowly and carefully crumple tissue paper for duration (non-bold #) silences (bold #s) below
repeat 3x

\[ \text{[31, 6, 12]} \]
slow crumple \hspace{1cm} slightly faster

raise and lower volume deliberately wait for player 2 to start air sound and go on to figure 2

2.
with each air puff from player 2 (stones), count to three and crumple for 2 counts, sometimes longer

\[ \text{[\text{air sound}] \hspace{1cm}} \]

fast swells, balanced with overall texture, occasionally rising above

3.
count to 31, choose a range of 5 durations to play air sounds (3-9, 16-17 etc); each repeat change durations, but continue to count unplayed numbers between.
occasionally pair with a sound made with tissue repeat until cue, then fade out with ensemble

\[ \text{1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31} \]

blend with texture never above, slowly fade with group
as the hour jumps to your eyes (4 windows on thalia field)

player 1: paper

the rectangle is a piece of cold press watercolor paper rub this sheet in the direction indicated using a second, smaller sheet of hot press watercolor paper
the first number is how long the rub should take, the bolded number is the amount of rest before moving to the next square

1. count should be slow

2. repeat 5 times

3. rub for 4 seconds per rotation, after the half way point, start to slow down

4. choose a page of text, read it silently to yourself, make a quiet one inch tear every time you read the word "the" (or its equivalent in any other language)

repeat the page and the process until the cue for the end of the piece